

We are better together. As Baptists, we celebrate our independence and church autonomy. But when we read the New Testament, we also see how the local churches worked together to accomplish larger goals and

“The association means so much to my family and I. If it were possible I would uproot them and place them in my current location...” Rev. Cory Cochran missions. Local churches took up funds to assist each other. In our communities, we have a huge task before us. There are over 61,780 people in Breckinridge, Hancock, Daviess, Ohio, and Perry counties, and the vast majority are unchurched. Every church in our association could be filled to capacity, and we would not come close to reaching all of these folks. It is our local association that helps churches accomplish this

“The local association was more than “brothers-in-arms.” It was accountability, encouragement, and a resource for churches like mine. Hardly a week went by that I was not by the office, in contact with staff, or in need of their help.” Rev. Kyle McDanell goal together.

“The Blackford Breckinridge Baptist Association has a very special place in my heart. When God opens the door for me to share my testimony, I always mention how this association provided me with resources...created opportunities for me to grow as a leader.... how it created community within churches that I benefited from.” Tori Morris, Children’s Minister

Through fellowship, training, and unified missions, we are able to minister to more together.

Churches may be as active as they choose in the local association. The office contains a wealth of information and helps to the local church, pastors, and members. The association holds regular trainings, and strategies to assist churches in reaching the lost. The association is closest to the local church and no one wishes to see the local church succeed more than this association. Stop by the office and allow us to assist you. Allow us to help you.
