Non-Profit Supporting Game Developers

The International Game Developers Association (IGDA) is the largest non-profit membership organization in the world serving all individuals who create games. The mission of the IGDA is to support and empower game developers around the world in achieving fulfilling and sustainable careers.
As an international organization, the IGDA is a U.S.-based 501(c)6 non-profit professional association and a global network of collaborative projects and communities of individuals from all fields of game development - including programmers and producers, designers and artists, as well as writers, business people, QA team members, localization experts, and everyone else who participates in any way in the game development process. The IGDA brings together developers at key industry conferences, and in over 150 Chapters and Special Interest Groups (SIGs), to improve their lives and their craft.

Website, Email, and Social Reach

The IGDA has an expansive and engaged network of game developers. Not only does this reach extend across the IGDA.org website, email lists, and social media platforms, but also across the social media networks of IGDA groups, such as its Chapters and Special Interest Groups. These groups have hundreds of these social media accounts in addition to the main social media accounts and frequently share posts from IGDA’s main accounts within them.

IGDA Insider

The IGDA emails a weekly newsletter, called the IGDA Insider, to its more than 28K subscribers. This letter has an impressive 29.65% open rate and is ideal for providing information to a wide range of developers.
New Website Launch
The IGDA plans to launch its new website October 2019. This site has vast improvements for featuring of content, navigability, and mobile formatting. It is expected the new website launch will increase traffic by 25% or more.
