

INTERIOR DESIGN[®]

MAY 31
2021

*the shape
of things*
spring market
tabloid

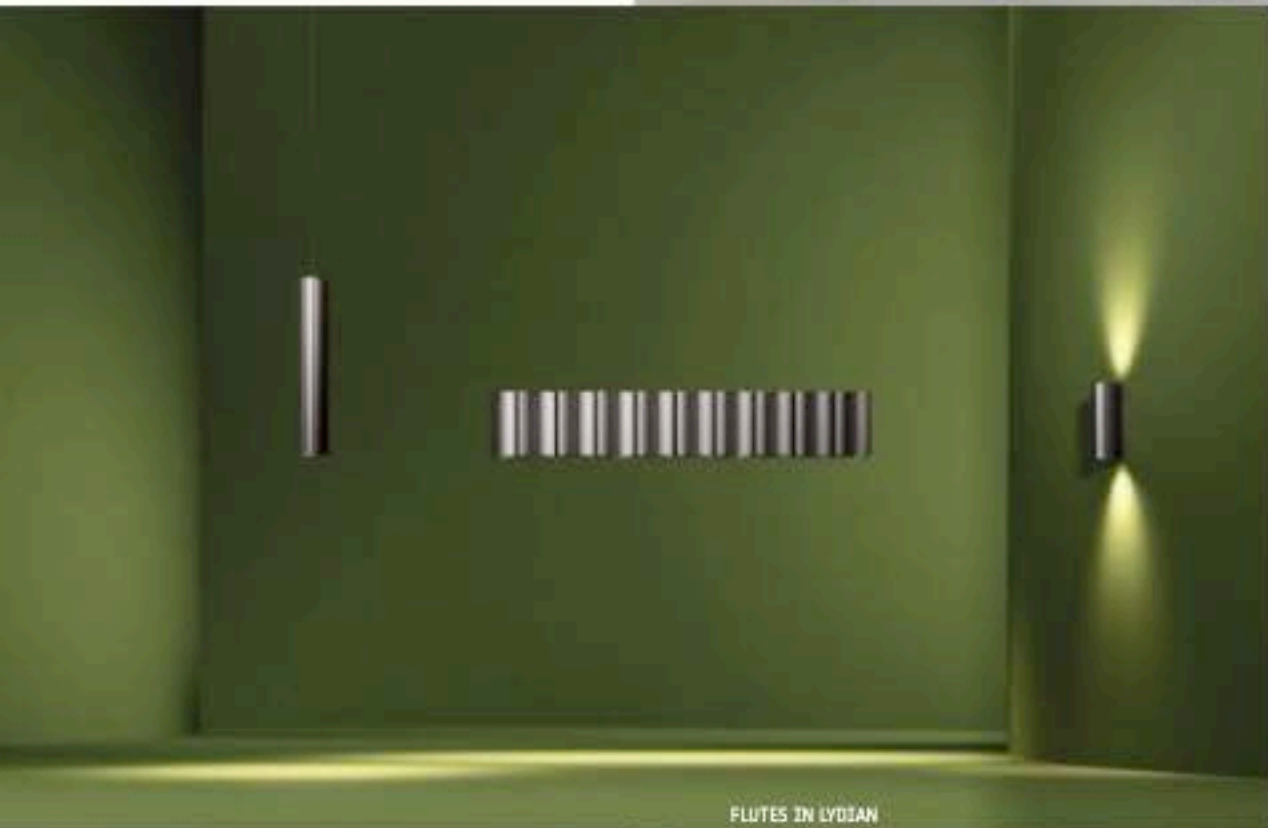

FLUTES IN DORIAN AND LYDIAN

THIN SURFACE MINTS

THIN RETRO FLOAT

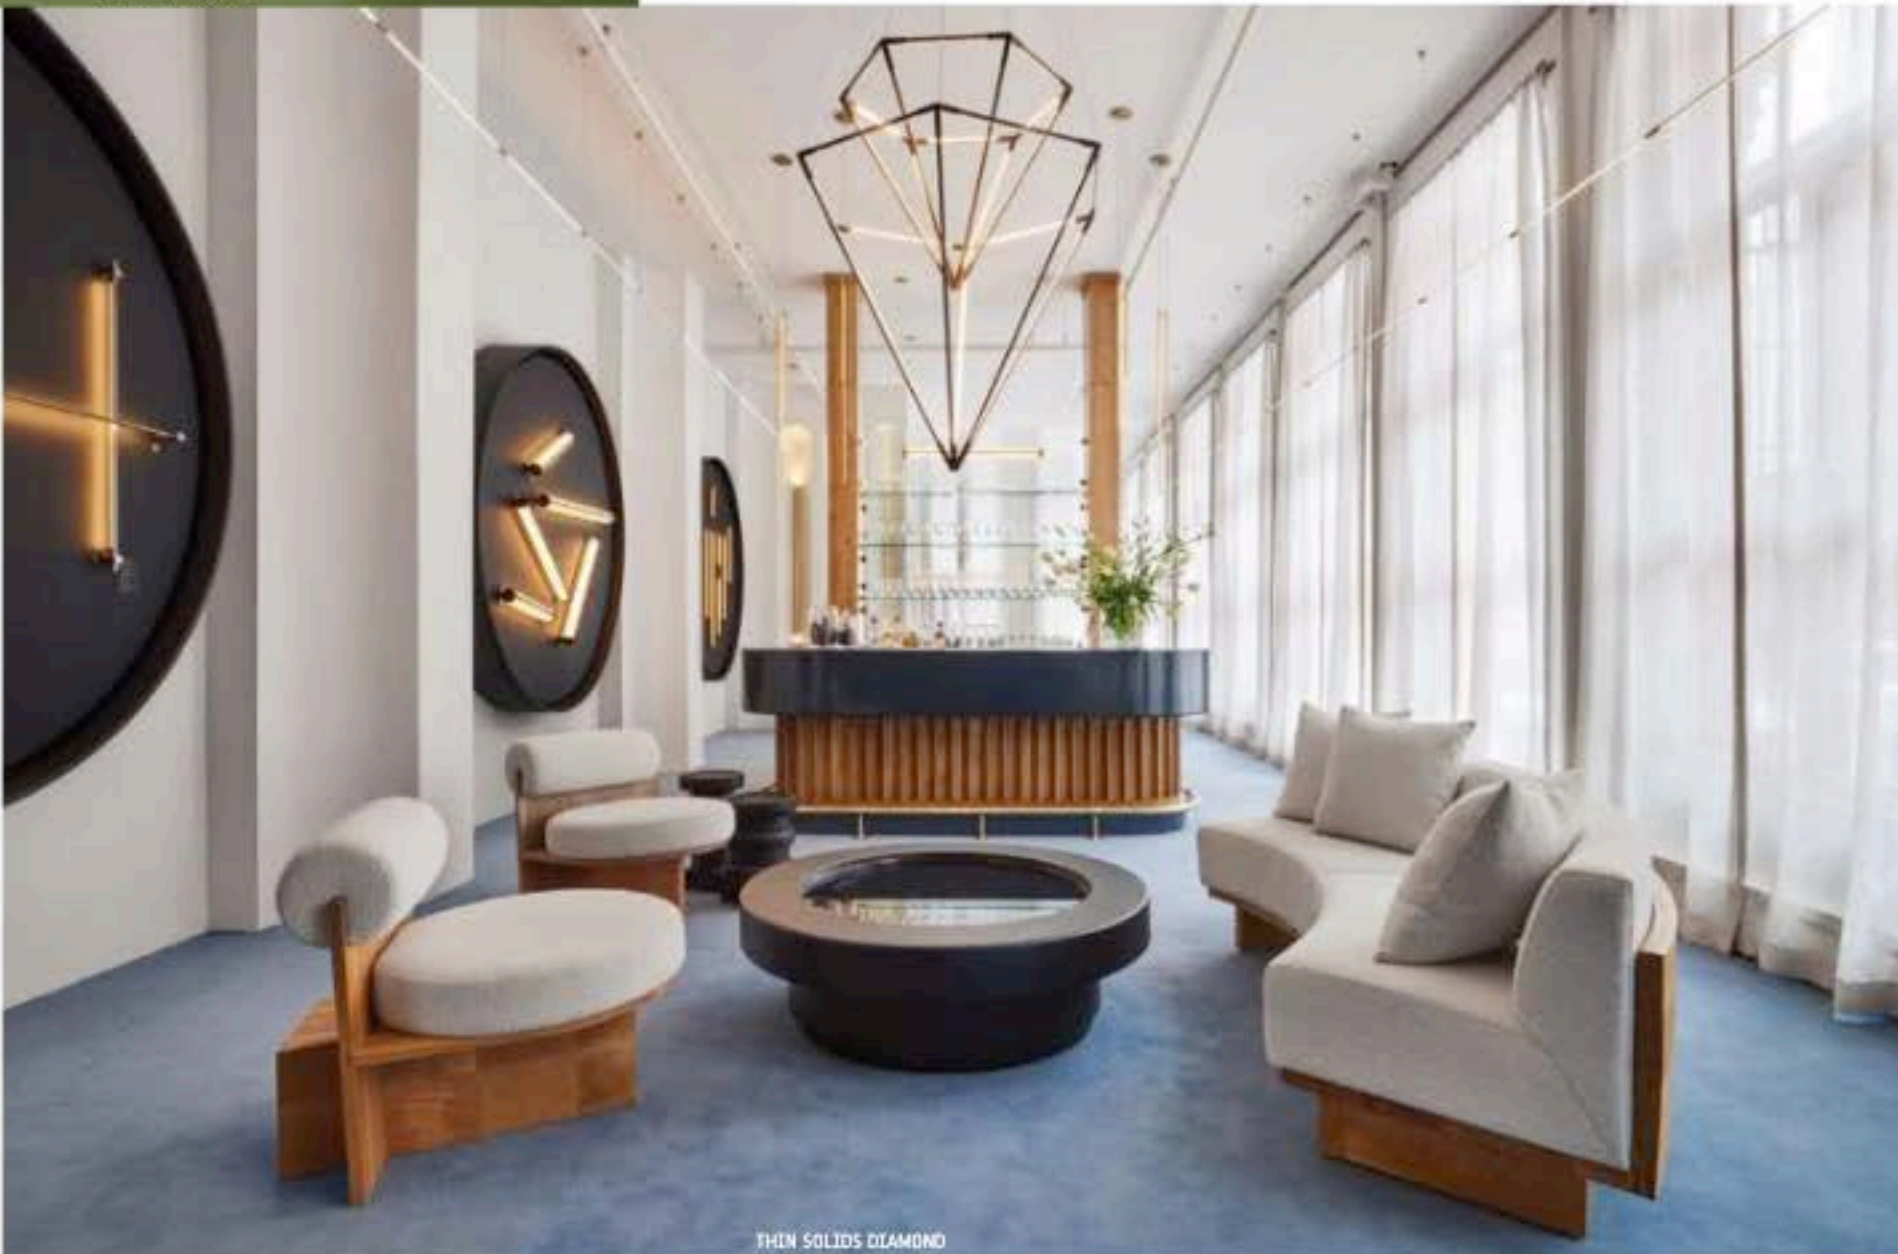

FLUTES IN LYDIAN

lighting

juniper

The lighting brand celebrates its 10th anniversary by launching a showroom—its first, on New York's Crosby Street—a chic salon with the air of an upscale hotel lobby. The high-ceilinged space, designed in collaboration with Asthétique, is apportioned into lounge and bar areas as well as a more intimate, residentially scaled vignette, all kitted out with furnishings stylistically simpatico with the company's clean-lined, geometric fixtures, which are handcrafted in Southington, Connecticut. Designers can peruse the entire modular product line, comparing finishes, sizes, and configurations within each near-endlessly customizable system. Floating above the lounge area is a double diamond-

THIN SOLIDS DIAMOND

shape Thin chandelier in satin brass by Peter Bristol. Axis X and Axis T fixtures in polished brass illuminate the adjacent bar. And an array of Flute pendants whose extruded aluminum forms can expand multidirectionally into arrays including Lydian, set aglow the southwest corner. Soon to join them is the company's new Universe, a novel architectural lighting system featuring modules that can be positioned anywhere along a ribbon-like track. juniper-design.com

"Designers can experience our fixtures in an inviting and beautifully lit space"