

Katie Block, M.S.W., M.P.H.

National Resource Center for Reaching Victims Project Coordinator

Katie Block is a Project Coordinator for the National Clearinghouse on Abuse in Later Life (NCALL), a project of End Domestic Abuse Wisconsin (End Abuse). In her role at NCALL, she provides nationwide leadership, technical assistance, and training to victim services professionals across the country on topics related to abuse in later life, and elder justice. She coordinates NCALL's work on the Office for Victims of Crime's National Resource Center for Reaching Victims (NRC); a one-stop shop where professionals and policymakers may get information and expert guidance to enhance their capacity to identify, reach, and serve all victims.

In her past work, Block supervised a victim services program designed for older adults in Philadelphia, PA. Her focus was on ensuring equitable access to justice for older victims and developing programming and collaborations to better reach victims. Prior to her work in victim services, Block worked as a social issues marketing and communications consultant, providing marketing strategy, material development, and strategic planning support for social service organizations.

She received a Bachelor of Arts in Sociology from the University of Rhode Island and received a Master of Social Work and a Master of Public Health from Temple University.
