

General questions

1. What problems can you identify in this story? Are solutions presented?
2. In what way might this story be relevant in your community?

Further exploration

1. How might the assassination of Sabeen Mahmud impact other activists in Pakistan? Has there been a discernible “chilling effect” on free speech since her assassination?
2. What was Sabeen’s explanation of why she and others participated in and encouraged political and arts discussions despite knowing that those actions made them targets?
3. How do you think international attention on a case like this could influence the outcome? Does this attention vary from country to country and why might that be the case?
4. Does the influence or impact of such attention vary from country to country and if so, why?