

General questions

1. What problems can you identify in this story? Are solutions presented?
2. In what way might this story be relevant in your community?

Further exploration

1. Do you aspire to own a home? How do you think your societal experience and history impact your own aspirations? What difficulties do you think you'll face?
2. What are the root causes of the disparity in home-ownership between white and non-white citizens? What impact does this disparity have elsewhere in society?
3. When historical wrongs still impact society today, should there be corrective action? By whom? Why or why not?