Further exploration

1. Why is it important to preserve the physical location of Nicodemus instead of just preserving the story of the town? Is this true of all historic sites? Why or why not?

2. Most all-Black towns were absorbed into larger municipalities or simply abandoned as residents migrated in search of work. If Nicodemus had not been bypassed by the railroad, what do you think it would look like today? Do you think it would have a different legacy?