PBS Wisconsin

PBS Wisconsin was founded to connect the people of Wisconsin through the public service mission known as The Wisconsin Idea. That philosophy states that knowledge and education should be freely shared among all citizens, specifically by extending the learning, resources and expertise of the University of Wisconsin to the borders of the state (and beyond), so that everyone may take full and equal advantage of civic and economic opportunity, make broad and deep social connections and strengthen our democracy. PBS Wisconsin is proud to have been a rich part of this tradition since its inception. Now, as then, we continue to pursue our mission of community service: on the air, in our communities and online.

Local Impact

PBS Wisconsin tells the story of our state through the many voices of its residents. Through our programs and educational and community initiatives, we share the history, culture, news and educational resources that make Wisconsin unique.

As service providers, we use all available platforms to reach all of our communities, uniting Wisconsin’s diverse residents, including Wisconsin’s 60,000 K-12 teachers. PBS Wisconsin’s four broadcast channels, plus our digital content, classroom education services and community engagement programs serve more than 1.4 million people across Wisconsin each month.

PBS Wisconsin Shares, Serves, Informs, Educates, Entertains and Connects

2019 stories of impact focus on:

- Serving Youth: Youth services through high-quality early-learning programming, spotlighting young performers, educator resources, school readiness, early literacy opportunities and a comprehensive K-12 education unit.

- Building Community: Online and in-person engagement that explores new ways to reach new audiences and brings people together to share stories, learning and fun!

- Sparking Conversation: Unbiased news and public affairs programming that delves into the issues and topics affecting local communities most, giving Wisconsin residents fact-based starting points for conversation.

- Bridging Wisconsin’s Past and Present: Shining a spotlight on Wisconsin, sharing and preserving our rich history, and building bridges of understanding and compassion across the state’s diverse communities.
PBS Wisconsin launched the Timothy William Trout Education Innovation Lab (Tim’s Lab) in 2019 in partnership with the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Working with the university’s prestigious Wisconsin Institutes for Discovery, PBS Wisconsin employs the resources of public media to connect world-class research to teachers and students. We are creating experiences and content to build science, technology, engineering, arts and mathematics (STEAM) identity, illuminate STEAM career pathways; and support the teaching of STEAM concepts, practices and ways of thinking.

- Tiny Earth is a global network of students and instructors dedicated to discovering new antibiotics through student-sourced field research. The Tiny Earth Lab, housed at the Wisconsin Institute for Discovery, seeks to inspire students to pursue careers in science through original laboratory and field research, while also aiming to address a worldwide health threat: the diminishing supply of effective antibiotics.

- Meet the Labs is a series of mini-documentaries and supplemental classroom materials developed to activate student discovery by engaging with the research conducted by labs housed at the Wisconsin Institute for Discovery, Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, the Morgridge Institute for Research and beyond.

- Future Self will be designed to support career-choice initiatives in classrooms across Wisconsin. The interactive project features short videos of Wisconsin professionals working in or pursuing careers in STEAM fields. Middle school students, using their own interests as a foundation, will explore videos and profiles of the featured individuals’ personal journeys and make connections based on shared interests, beliefs and experiences. Future Self seeks to help students answer the question: “How am I like a scientist?”

Lasting Impact for Early Learners in Cashton and Westby

Through a federal Ready to Learn grant, PBS Wisconsin is working in two rural communities northwest of Madison to support early learning through development of a Community Collaborative for Early Learning and Media. PBS Wisconsin partnered with educational and community leaders in the village of Cashton in Monroe County and the neighboring city of Westby in Vernon County. These communities have little access to regulated childcare centers, private preschools or collaborative partners such as a YMCA or a Boys and Girls Club. The majority of early childcare providers are unregulated and may not be equipped to build school readiness.

Members of the PBS Wisconsin Education team have been working closely with the Westby Area School District, Westby Bekkum Library, Westby Lutheran Church, Cashton Area School District and the Cashton Public Library to facilitate enriching family engagement events. In 2019, partners hosted 28 events, with an emphasis on STEAM, literacy and play-based learning.

Westby Elementary principal Bruce Peterson said that the successful implementation of Ready to Learn programming at his school helped “light the schoolhouse,” keeping the school open beyond school hours. This partnership allowed the school to introduce more afterschool family engagement opportunities that have had great success. For example, they recently hosted a Math Night and had more than 70 attendees. Additionally, the school is building a “STEAM Closet” that has Ready to Learn activity-specific supplies in it for teachers to activate this learning in their own classrooms.

In an effort to promote STEAM play and learning, PBS Wisconsin Education set up mini makerspaces for community use at both libraries and the Westby Lutheran Church. Librarians have used these makerspaces for hands-on, engaging tools during storytime. They are also utilized during their after-school programs.
Partnering with Eau Claire Educators to Create Needed Hmong Cultural Resources

The Wisconsin Hometown Stories series is a multimedia project profiling key regions in Wisconsin through television documentaries and local history resources tailored to meet community educational needs. In the development of the project in Eau Claire, educators emphasized a need for more digital learning resources – especially biographies and curriculum materials about the area’s Hmong community.

Together with these educators, PBS Wisconsin Education created Joe Bee Xiong: War to Peace as a suite of culturally responsive digital resources available on pbswisconsineducation.org and pbslearningmedia.org for all students to use in their classrooms or other learning environments.

“The design of Joe Bee Xiong: War to Peace was inspired by story cloths, a distinctive textile used in Hmong storytelling.

“Your team has done an amazing job with the Joe Bee Xiong project. The website has a perfect combination of text, images and video so students have many ways to access the story (and at many levels).”
—Joel Raney, Former Eau Claire Area Hmong Mutual Assistance Association Culturally Responsive Coach

Planting the Seeds of Kindness

PBS Wisconsin teamed up with the Center for Healthy Minds at UW-Madison to activate the research-backed Kindness Curriculum in the video series Kindness in the Classroom.

Kindness in the Classroom is a multi-part video series designed to empower educators who want to bring mindfulness into their classrooms. The series starts with insight into the positive impacts of teaching mindfulness, and then demonstrates implementation of the Kindness Curriculum: a free 24-lesson mindfulness guide designed for early learning classrooms.

“This curriculum teaches the most important skills children need to do well in school and in the world.”
—Renae Henning, Community Care and Preschool in Beaver Dam

“I cannot wait to share this with my students. This is another resource that we can use in our Hmong culture class! Truly, this is a great project, and I especially love how the animation turned out. I felt like cheering at the end!”
—Pua Song, Hmong Culture Specialist at the American Hmong Peace Academy

PBS Wisconsin’s Kindness in the Classroom video series is designed to help pre-k and kindergarten students.

The design of Joe Bee Xiong: War to Peace was inspired by story cloths, a distinctive textile used in Hmong storytelling.
“I appreciated all of the workshops and seminars around the video production process. The team-building activities in the beginning of the workshop were KEY to the success and the camaraderie that was created. I have never attended a PD [professional development] session that was so built around relationships as this one was! You did a phenomenal job modeling the strategies that you presented to us I plan on taking those with me back to my school. The mentoring by PBS Wisconsin and PBS Student Reporting Labs staff was key in the success of this! It was incredibly hands on and engaging. I LOVED that we created a piece about one another. It was a lot safer than having to go out and find a story on the streets and we got a great piece to treasure. THANK YOU!”

–Andi Kornowski, Click Teacher Summer Camp Attendee

Video Production Immersion Summer Camp for Educators

The Click Youth Media program supports educators in teaching digital literacy and media production. The program also develops the ability of students to understand and interpret media, engage with it through critical dialogue and produce their own media, building a critical 21st Century skill set.

In August 2019, PBS Wisconsin Education hosted the first Click Teacher Summer Camp: A Video Production Immersion, a three-day professional development conference for educators looking to implement digital programming, including video production, podcasting and digital storytelling skills in their classrooms.

Parents can subscribe with their child’s age and zip code to receive relevant messages delivered directly to their phone.
Spotlighting Wisconsin’s Talented Young Performers

PBS Wisconsin has a long tradition of showcasing the creative achievements of Wisconsin’s young performers and the hard work that goes on behind the scenes. The annual broadcast and popular live stream of The Jerry Awards celebrates Wisconsin high school musical theater and serves to encourage, recognize, and honor excellence in our young performers in the state. The 2019 Jerry Awards was streamed by nearly 7,000 viewers from across Wisconsin and around the world, including the UK, Canada, Brazil, Poland, France, Norway, and Germany. The Jerry Awards will be celebrating its 10th year of exhibiting student’s talent in its upcoming 2019/2020 season.

“Programs such as these bring the opportunity to enjoy the talents of young people and listen to music viewers may not have had a chance to hear, hopefully fostering a desire to seek out live performances. Awesome as always!”
—Cynthia from Shawano

Twenty-one Years of Get Up and Go! Two Years of Sensory-Friendly Time

PBS Wisconsin’s longstanding Get Up and Go! Day active-lifestyle event and live broadcast turned 21 this year. The event teaches pre-school kids and their families about healthy choices and active lifestyles.

Bringing families together with PBS KIDS characters Daniel Tiger and Katerina Kittycat, music from SteveSongs, as well as local health partners and nutritionists, musicians and artists, fitness enthusiasts and local activity-focused youth non-profits, the popular event was held in Madison, Appleton and La Crosse with total in-person attendance of more than 3,000 people.

PBS Wisconsin proudly expanded Get Up and Go! Day Sensory-Friendly Time in Madison in 2019 from one hour to two, bringing the event to 30 families with children who need social and sensory accommodations. Collaborating with the Autism Society of Southcentral Wisconsin, PBS Wisconsin strives to make all Wisconsin early learners feel seen and included in PBS Wisconsin’s Get Up and Go! Day.

“My daughter said more to Daniel Tiger in the last ten minutes than she’s said to me in the last ten years.”
—a mother who participated in PBS Wisconsin’s Sensory Friendly Time at Get Up and Go!

SERVING YOUTH
SERVING YOUTH

This now-annual broadcast aims to inspire artists, young and old, to explore and share their passions, bringing to life new talent and a refreshing perspective on the love of classical music.

Music from Madeline Island

Music From Madeline Island captured talented young artists and world-renowned musicians performing at Madeline Island Chamber Music, a summer music festival located near the shores of Lake Superior. The program shared the daily life of the festival’s young musicians, ages 14-25, as they honed their craft, received intensive training, performed in public concerts and explored the beauty of the island.
New Name, Same Quilting Extravaganza

PBS Wisconsin’s Quilt Expo changed its name to The Great Wisconsin Quilt Show in 2019. Although the name of the popular quilting event evolved, its commitment to serving quilt communities across Wisconsin, the Midwest and across the nation remains unchanged. More than 20,000 quilting enthusiasts joined us this year to enjoy 286 quilts on display in the Quilt Contest exhibit, 239 quilts in 11 special quilt exhibit areas, 41 quilts in the new Log Cabin Quilt Challenge exhibit and 16 quilts in the Modern Mini Quilt Challenge exhibit. The show also included 126 informational lectures, 26 stage presentations and 31 interactive Sit & Sew workshops. More than 30 bed-size quilts and tops were collected and completed for the “Quilt to Give” community service project to benefit Enchanted Makeovers and Domestic Abuse Intervention Services (DAIS). And, more than 500 community volunteers contributed more than 3,400 hours in support of the show.

Wisconsin Country Music Minutes

Gather a Crowd Online and On Air

PBS Wisconsin brought the panoramic view of Country Music: A Film From Ken Burns closer to home, offering up opportunities for viewers to connect with the music’s local roots. This work included nine Wisconsin Country Music Minutes, featuring historian Bill C. Malone, who introduced viewers to Wisconsin artists who made and continue to make an indelible imprint on this shared songbook. Shared online and on air in conjunction with the documentary’s primetime broadcast, PBS Wisconsin’s Wisconsin Country Music Minutes were viewed 27,786 times on Facebook and 1,453 times on pbswisconsin.org.

Leading up to the documentary in May, PBS Wisconsin also hosted the The Story of Country Music, a book talk and lecture by Malone. Held as a public event in Madison and a University Place recording for broadcast on PBS Wisconsin, the talk was also live streamed to 4,000 viewers.

In November, Malone was on-site to talk about his participation in the film, and experiences working with Burns, at a preview screening of Country Music at Madison’s Monona Terrace. This event was also live streamed to 1,600 viewers, with additional viewership coming from pbswisconsin.org.

BUILDING COMMUNITY

Not Enough Apologies: Trauma Stories

PBS Wisconsin selected May, Trauma-Informed Care Awareness Month, to share the new documentary, Not Enough Apologies: Trauma Stories. The program explores the effects of traumatic experiences on children and adults and new responses to it. It tracks survivors of trauma and their lived experiences, including repeated foster care, treatment center and juvenile prison placements.

Beloit Youth Discuss Trauma, Recovery and Redemption

Students from the Beloit Fresh Start Youth Build GED and job-training program led a frank and vulnerable conversation with Minding the Gap filmmaker Bing Liu and film subject Keire Johnson at a public screening of the Academy Award- and Emmy Award-nominated documentary that aired statewide on PBS Wisconsin.

Minding the Gap is the directorial debut of Rockford-raised filmmaker Bing Liu. Filmed over a span of 12 years in Rockford, it begins as a skateboarding film and evolves into an exploration of the long-term effects of domestic violence, race, class and education in the Illinois-Wisconsin state line region.

With funding from POV-American Documentary, and in cooperation with enthusiastic local partners that included Community Action, Inc. of Rock County and the Beloit International Film Festival, PBS Wisconsin brought together a broad cross-section of about 130 Beloit-area residents for an evening of food, film and critical dialogue.

"We need so much help in this area to understand the direction our country is going. The numbers are staggering - incarceration, suicide, bullying, gun violence, mental health issues. We need help. We need resources and programs like this bring us together with shared experiences."
—Mary from Madison

Not Enough Apologies: Trauma Stories Explores New Approaches to Trauma

Wisconsin is regarded as a model for its response to trauma. The documentary explores novel approaches across the state where service providers are working to be responsive to trauma in efforts to change the trajectory for affected children. PBS Wisconsin additionally launched an online resource page with statewide clinical partners to share additional information and provide comprehensive information about available community services.

PBS Wisconsin is working with several partners and communities on an ongoing engagement campaign. The goal is to connect community stakeholders to proactively raise awareness about the impact of trauma, to share best practices for trauma remediation and to provide information about accessing community support.

Beyond television, PBS Wisconsin also provides a number of online news and information services and resources, including WisContext and Noon Wednesday, as well as a comprehensive voter resource site, WisconsinVote.org.

Here & Now

Here & Now is PBS Wisconsin’s weekly news and public affairs series, airing each Friday evening statewide on PBS Wisconsin. Below are a few highlights from 2019.

On Nov. 22, Here & Now anchor Frederica Freyberg interviewed Sen. Ron Johnson, R-Oshkosh, in the heat of the House of Representatives impeachment hearings in Washington, where he was frequently mentioned by witnesses because of his role on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and his work on Ukraine issues.

This year, PBS Wisconsin invested in new LiveU technology to facilitate live, on-location broadcast and web streaming features. PBS Wisconsin journalists plan to make robust use of this technology to interview people throughout the state, as well as for live nightly reporting from the Democratic National Convention in Milwaukee and the Republican National Convention in Charlotte in 2020.

Noon Wednesday

Noon Wednesday, one of PBS Wisconsin’s newest News & Public Affairs series, is a weekly digital news interview program livestreamed on Facebook every Wednesday at noon. PBS Wisconsin digital news producer Marisa Wojcik hosts the show and invites guests who speak on diverse issues and topics relevant to Wisconsin. In 2019, Noon Wednesday has covered issues of domestic violence, Wisconsin’s right-to-farm law, climate change, access to the internet, flood damage, vaccination, and much more.
New “News” Web Page

This year, the PBS Wisconsin News Unit launched a new web page to provide audiences a more integrated and accessible means of interacting with our journalism resources. Found by visiting pbswisconsin.org and clicking on the News tab, the page will continue to be populated with additional assets, including original web articles, long-form original content, partner resources and more.

WisContext: A Multimedia News and Information Service

WisContext is a digital news and information publication, a broadcast partnership and syndication service developed in collaboration between PBS Wisconsin and Wisconsin Public Radio. WisContext.org explores long-term issues and emerging trends affecting life in Wisconsin, with focuses in 2019 on trauma-informed care, the state’s dairy industry, demographic change and climate science. This content is curated into multi-story series that offer an in-depth and extended look at how themes developed in Wisconsin’s history, and the ways they are shaping Wisconsin’s future. WisContext also presents original content and important studies and data from academic experts such as the University of Wisconsin’s Applied Population Lab, drawing on their specialized expertise and research.

In 2019, the WisContext team worked on two particularly compelling series aimed at informing the conversation about climate change in the Midwest, “Climate Science and Wisconsin” and “Extreme Participation and Wisconsin’s Climate.” From the environment to human health to the economy, gauging the impacts of a changing climate is an urgent scientific endeavor with implications for every Wisconsinite. WisContext provides deep exploration of these critical issues and complex systems.
“No one else would or could do it. This program added a whole layer of complexity to the controversy over wolves. The Ojibwe have a stake in the debate that very few are aware of.”
—David from Marshfield

“There is no other source of programming of this quality. The assistance of the elders to tell the story, the art, and the use of the indigenous language was well used to create a thoughtful and educational program that was beautiful to look at as well.”
—Nancy from Wautoma

Ma’iingan: Brother Wolf

The Ojibwe share a deep connection with Ma’iingan, their name for wolf. Their creation story explains that Ma’iingan was created to be a brother to Original Man. Because their fates are entwined, what happens to one will also happen to the other. Produced with support from elders in several Ojibwe communities, PBS Wisconsin shared the documentary Ma’iingan: Brother Wolf in 2019.

With insight from Ojibwe elders, biologists and visionary artist Rabbett Before Horses Strickland, this film captured enduring spiritual connections with Brother Wolf, the lasting bonds and responsibilities shared between native people and the wolf species and the opportunities and challenges presented by the reintroduction and protection of the animals across reservation lands.

Friends of PBS Wisconsin also commissioned an oil painting titled “Iskwaj Nibi [The Last Waterhole: Creating a New World]” by Strickland, an Ojibwe artist. The creation of Strickland’s painting not only serves as a major plot point of the documentary but also as an artifact for educational outreach. In collaboration with the Chazen Museum of Art at UW-Madison, PBS Wisconsin hosted an educational outreach event centered on Ma’iingan: Brother Wolf and Strickland’s painting.

This project builds on PBS Wisconsin’s extensive prior work collaborating with native communities in Wisconsin to provide authentic and accurate information about Wisconsin’s First Nations.
“We are more and more isolated these days, living in our own worlds. Programming like Portraits from Rural Wisconsin offers an opportunity to remember we are all one, and the burden of one is mine, too.”

—Pam from Portage

Sharing Wisconsin’s Rural Perspectives

In 2019, PBS Wisconsin built on its long history of providing interesting, innovative and entertaining programs spotlighting rural perspectives.

Portraits from Rural Wisconsin premiered in April, sharing a series of interwoven personal stories that show why some western Wisconsin residents still say that “rural life is the best life”—even in the face of hardship and change. PBS Wisconsin producer and reporter Andy Soth visited rural America to connect knowledge and understanding between Wisconsin residents.

Michael Perry Documentaries

Michael Perry: How Ya Doin’? and Michael Perry: Where I Come From are two new PBS Wisconsin documentaries from 2019 featuring Michael Perry, both a rural Wisconsin pig farmer and New York Times bestselling author. In much of Perry’s work, you’ll often find the phrase, “Where I come from.” PBS Wisconsin discovered that’s a place of values and hard work and simple joys.

In both of the 2019 films, Perry shared heartwarming, poignant yet humorous stories about his childhood home, his family, grade school, high school, farm work, sports and his life as a writer. These were all woven together by the life lessons that teach us who we are.

Four free screenings, including an audience question and answer session with Perry, were held in Wausau, Madison, Green Bay and Eau Claire.

Medicine on Main Street

Medicine on Main Street explored the challenges of living in a rural community. Access to quality health care can be one of these challenges depending on where you live. In rural communities, it is becoming harder to recruit and retain talented health care professionals, specialists and mental health experts.

This documentary shows how pharmacists are working together to provide local residents with high-quality health care.
PBS Wisconsin producers met with many local residents, in community centers, libraries and homes, to recall and recapture Sauk City and Prairie du Sac’s past. PBS Wisconsin also worked with local historical societies, the school district and community leaders to identify stories, people to interview, and to secure the visual material necessary to produce the program, revealing a rich and compelling history that informs the present.

“I could not wait to arrive to my desk to send the staff a HUGE thank you for an incredible job done on Wisconsin Hometown Stories. I was amazed for the entire 60 minutes and learned so much. Because of this show, I will never look at places, people or the impact of history the same way. Truly, it changed me for the better last night as the chamber director here. Thank you so much for seeing the potential in Sauk Prairie, and sharing its history.”
—Tywana German from the Sauk Prairie Chamber of Commerce

Mike Leckrone: Wisconsin’s Showman
Premiering in November as a pledge special, Mike Leckrone: Wisconsin’s Showman reflected on the life and work of this legendary and talented composer, educator, mentor and entertainer. For 50 years, Professor Michael Leckrone led the University of Wisconsin-Madison bands and became the face of Badger school spirit, energy, and pride for fans across the state and country. He cultivated lasting traditions of the annual Varsity Band Concerts and Fifth Quarter after home Badger football games. Both reflective and celebratory, the documentary revealed aspects of Leckrone’s life and career that remained surprisingly unknown for someone in the spotlight for so long. Two free screenings were held in Madison, one for the general public and one at a senior residential living community.

Wisconsin Hometown Stories: Sauk Prairie
The Wisconsin Hometown Stories series has been a PBS Wisconsin tradition for more than a decade, telling the history of the state one community at a time. PBS Wisconsin was excited to share Sauk Prairie’s rich history in 2019.

“The life lessons and Badger spirit that Mike Leckrone has imparted on me and countless others is immeasurable, but this tribute to him, his life, his family and his legacy truly does justice to it all. Thank you so much for producing this incredible program! I loved it! I will be watching it many times!”

Around the Farm Table

Inga Witscher hosted the seventh season of Around the Farm Table, which premiered this fall. In the show, Witscher’s story becomes the vehicle for telling the stories of other interesting small-scale farmers the crew encounters along the way.
